By adding existing available light to a post sunset environment you can get spectacular photos. About the photos: The photos from the Delta Queen were shot after sunset along the river in Decatur, Alabama using a Canon EOS 5D and a 24-70mm f2.8 lens. The exposure was ISO 800 at about 1/4 second at f2.8.

Available and ambient light refer to any and all light sources the photographer did not introduce for their photograph; light bulbs, candles, fire, neon, to name a few. The available light around us is a great opportunity for our photography and photographers should be passionate about making best use of this light when capturing a photo.

Using a motorised zoom, and a small dolly to move the camera slowly and precisely across the surface of the structures. Grøvlien and Jóhannsson shot in available light, primarily in the 'golden hour' of dawn and dusk, and almost entirely against the sky, in order to show little other than the monuments, the sun, the clouds and the surrounding nature.
