Many important reactions take place in aqueous solutions. In fact, many of the reactions that take place throughout your body (from your organs down to individual cells) are aqueous reactions. Understanding the most common aqueous reactions and how to correctly write them is one of the most important skills you should master in Chemistry 1A.

REACTIONS IN AQUEOUS SOLUTIONS

$CaCO_3(s) + H_2CO_3(aq) \rightleftharpoons Ca(HCO_3)_2(aq)$ Evaporation of water causes carbon dioxide to be driven off, resulting in the precipitation of calcium carbonate: $Ca(HCO_3)_2(aq) \rightleftharpoons CaCO_3(s) + H_2O(l) + CO_2(g)$ The reprecipitated calcium carbonate forms a hard scale, or incrustation, on the surface of the object.

Several types of reactions occur in water. When water is the solvent for a reaction, the reaction is said to occur in aqueous solution, which is denoted by the abbreviation (aq) following the name of a chemical species in a reaction. Three important types of reactions in water are precipitation, acid-base, and oxidation-reduction reactions.

Reactions in Water or Aqueous Solution - ThoughtCo

Aqueous solutions can be classified as polar or nonpolar depending on how well they conduct electricity. Most chemical reactions are carried out in solutions, which are homogeneous mixtures of two or more substances. In a solution, a solute (the substance present in the lesser amount) is dispersed in a solvent (the substance present in the greater amount).
